EDITORS NOTE

This issue we immerse ourselves in the international language understood by all...MUSIC! With summer well and truly on its way, there is no better time to get along and see some live music, sing some karaoke or simply reminisce on the first CD, cassette or album you ever bought.

Whether you like disco, opera, indie or country, Redcliffe has all music lovers covered with a huge month of events.

Our feature story celebrates the outstanding success of Redcliffe's favourite sons, The Bee Gees.

The Independent Music Conference, will this month, launch at Redcliffe's newest live music venue, Rock Central @ Bramble Bay Bowls Club. The honour of hosting the IMC launch party will certainly put the Peninsula on the muso map.

If theatre music is more to your taste, Marina Prior is performing at the Redcliffe Cultural Centre as part of her national Songbird tour.

We also head to the streets and ask the locals about the first album they ever bought. So sit back, play your favourite song and enjoy this month's issue of the Redcliffe Guide.

Thoughts, opinions, ideas... we would love to hear from you. Email us at info@redcliffe.net.au.

A WORD FROM OUR REPRESENTATIVES

Cr Koliana Winchester

Plans are ramping up for the Margate Community Festival, which will be held on 29th November. Traders will showcase their products and services while also pulling together to host a family fun day with live music, children's festival and market stalls. The festival will be held from 11am-7pm and parts of Baynes Street will be temporarily closed. The highlight of the festival will be the lighting of the Margate Christmas Tree. This will be a great treat for locals and families, helping to usher in the Christmas season. Local school choirs will also be performing Christmas Carols. I, and the Moreton Bay Regional Council, proudly support this community festival. New life for the Old Fire Station is nearing completion.

I can't wait to see the highly anticipated volunteer hub up and running. For further information you can get in touch with myself on 3283 0411 or email

Koliana.winchester@moretonbay.qld.gov.au.

Yvette D'Ath MP

Petitions to State Parliament are an important way our community can have a say on issues that matter to us. Recently, I sponsored and tabled in parliament a petition calling for proper community consultation on the draft Moreton Bay Regional Council planning scheme. In light of the recent loss of turtles and dugongs in the Bay, I am also sponsoring a petition calling for a moratorium on the hunting and killing of endangered animals in Moreton Bay. Finally, I'm working on a petition in relation to Lemon Laws. Lemon Laws are aimed at strengthening the protections available to consumers in the event they purchase a new car that is faulty. If you have an idea for a petition, please contact me on 3284 2667 or email Redcliffe@parliament.qld.gov.au.

I have served Redcliffe locals as the Federal Member for Petrie for over a year now, and I'm honoured to be your representative. Created in 1949, the Petrie electorate was named after Andrew Petrie, a renowned civil engineer, pioneer and explorer. Notably, the electorate doesn't take in the suburb of Petrie.

The Redcliffe Peninsula makes up 30 per cent of the Petrie electorate. I've been visiting locals and community groups around the area, and promoting projects like Work for the Dole. It's great that our area is one of the first to get the program. Work for the Dole has seen many young locals develop their experience and skillset. Most have gone on to find work or pursue higher education. The program participants I met at the Redcliffe PCYC now have a story to tell future employers about the kitchen they renovated and the deck they built.

If you'd like me to visit your business or organisation, call me on 3284 8008.

CHOIR HITS A 10 YEAR HIGH

Multitude community choir celebrates 10 years of performing

This November, Multitude community choir celebrates 10 years of performing extensively in and around the northern Moreton Bay region with a 10th Anniversary Concert. From humble beginnings under a Redcliffe house, the choir has now grown to include over 30 singers whose ages range from their 20's through to their 70's. Multitude is a non-auditioned community choir; all you need to bring to us is a love of music and singing.

Multitude has established a great reputation and tradition on the Peninsula with many performances, including Scarborough's 'Christmas by the Sea Festival', 'Kitefest' and 'Celebrate Redcliffe'. They have also performed with the Moreton Bay Orchestra at The Redcliffe Cultural Centre, the choir's own biennial concerts, plus fundraising charity performances. Many of Multitude's foundation members are still performing with the choir, and are still going strong singing their hearts out at weekly rehearsals simply for the love of bringing the joy of music and performance to a wide audience.

As the name suggests, Multitude always presents a diverse range of music and this concert, which is financially supported by the Moreton Bay Regional Council, again promises an entertainment smorgasbord. Selections from ABBA, Michael Jackson and Broadway shows will be performed, along with the hauntingly beautiful 'Fields of Gold' as recorded and written by Sting and 'Skyfall' from the James Bond movie, originally recorded and co-written by Adele. And as befits a Redcliffe choir, you'll be entertained by a 'Bee Gees' selection. Plus, there'll be a few more musical surprises for the audience, including performances from the Sharon Alback Dance Centre.

Multitudes 10th Anniversary Concert will be presented at 2pm on Saturday, 15th November at Grace Lutheran College, Rothwell. R

Tickets are $10 each, $25 family and $5 for children aged 6 – 13.

NEW NOT-FOR-PROFIT KICKSTARTS CREATIVE CAREERS!

Katy More

MBCC Inc President Britney Maddocks

The daily struggle for those aspiring to work in a creative career is about to get easier with the launch of Moreton Bay's newest Non Profit group – Moreton Bay Creative Community.

This membership based organisation - run by emerging creatives, for emerging creatives - has already kick-started the careers of many in Moreton Bay and is set to disrupt the creative industry mindset around collaboration and connectivity.

"It is amazing to watch the growth of those starting out in their creative career when they join our organisation", said Katy More, Creative Generator for Moreton Bay Creative Community.

"All the staff here are motivated by helping creative people get connected with those who can inspire, guide, or offer volunteer or paid opportunities to help launch their career. To see their confidence grow and to share their journey of wins and disappointments makes my volunteer role worthwhile."

Yearly memberships are priced modestly at $15 for a Junior (under 18), $20 for a student or pensioner and $30 for an Adult. Whilst all memberships have standard inclusions, such as a 'members only' Facebook site, member logos, and the ability to get involved in the running and operation of the non-profit organisation, it is perhaps the Creative Generator role that is most beneficial.

"I have been able to cover stories and meet people like Edwina McCann from Vogue Australia, which I would not have been able to do of my own accord", shared Bree Einfalt, MBCC Member and QUT Fashion Student.

Moreton Bay Creative Community's President, Ms Britney Maddocks, added that the benefits of the Creative Generators are that they are 'serial collaborators' and are continually working to form connections and opportunities for members.

"Our official launch is being held on Saturday, 1st November, 2014 at the Redcliffe Hive and we encourage all who are creative, or who support creative industries to attend and find out more about us," announced Britney.

There will be raffles, silent auctions, performances by emerging musicians and the ability to become a member on the night.

Launch party Saturday 1st November, 6pm at the Redcliffe Hive. Numbers are limited so please RSVP to Britney@mbccinc.org R

WHO'S NEW

Reef Point Café

Emma Harley

Iconic Bayside eatery The Reef Point Café is back in a prime new location.

Set on the waterfront in Redcliffe's bustling Redcliffe Parade, the café has given a new lease on life to the old Bayview Hotel.

After closing their doors in June, owners Mandy and Paul say they received a lot of support from their loyal customers.

“Our customers have always said they feel like friends coming into our home and we are so proud to have built a café (that) people feel so relaxed coming into,” Paul says.

“Sometimes things happen for a reason and we are so excited about our gorgeous new location and new look.”

Paul says the Reef Point Café is a “grown up” version of the previous Reef Point Esplanade café, offering an amazing view, simple fresh modern Australian food and the same good old-fashioned service.

“We will never forget the things that have made our business: great coffee, views, service and still dog-friendly,” Paul says.

“Just the other day, a local businessman said he is waiting for us to reopen for our breakfast kippers!”

Paul and Mandy would love to see all the old customers experience the new café, as well as meet new customers who have not visited the café in the past.

“We thought we had a great view at the Reef Point Esplanade in Scarborough, but now we have an amazing view of Moreton Bay and Moreton Island,” Paul says.

“Change is good and we can't wait for the next few years”. R

YUMMY FLOWERS

With a strong local following for her edible bouquets, Redcliffe florist Jess Jones has expanded her range in a brand new premises to include gift hampers, fresh flowers and a range of teddies, helium balloons and gift cards.

Jess says her business has grown over the last two years and there was a great demand to see her range in person and she has been greatly supported by local businesses, who have been excited watching her little florist shop grow.

"I quickly built up a relationship with some lovely regular customers, who walk down the arcade every other day and enjoy stopping to look and smell the fresh flowers," Jess says.

"I love listening to the memories of the arcade, the shops that have been and gone and then having the opportunity to create a new memory and moment for someone - I love my job!"

PAMS AFFORDABLE GIFTS

A familiar sight on Redcliffe's popular Sutton Street, local favourite Pam's Affordable Gifts has expanded its premises.

Owner Pam Thomson says she quickly outgrew her new shop since moving five months ago and saw a golden opportunity to expand even further when the shop next to her became vacant.

The store offers a wide range of men's, women's and children's clothing and a variety of unique gifts including crystals, tin signs, classic miniature cars and other items, too numerous to mention.

Pam says she has been warmly accepted by the community since the move.

"The locals are the loveliest, friendliest people you could hope to meet and have accepted me with open arms," Pam says.

"I have made lots of new friends and often the younger generation just gather in my shop and talk, Redcliffe is an amazing place and I love it."

CHANGES TO RESTRICT PROPERTY INVESTMENT MAY BE JUST AROUND THE CORNER

Interest rates were left on hold at the record low 2.5% for the 14th consecutive month by the Reserve Bank at its October board meeting.

It is the longest rate hold in more than 10 years.

Dr Luci Ellis, the RBA's Financial Stability Department Head, recently said part of the anticipated effect of low interest rates is to induce more construction activity.

Rising house prices are the incentive for new house construction – but the majority of new loans have been towards the purchase of existing properties.

The central bank is concerned that rising house prices and increasing investor activity could pose a risk to banking stability and to the economy.

The challenge is to cool the property market without lifting interest rates.

In the 12 months to June 2014 national house prices rose by 10.1%, but in Sydney, prices have risen by 15.6% and Melbourne by 9.3%.

A better loan. A better way.

Over the same period, residential property prices in Brisbane grew by 6.8%.

On the Redcliffe Peninsula there are close to 534 properties listed for sale.

Based on July 2014 data there was 9.2% less housing for sale on the Redcliffe Peninsula than that advertised 12 months ago.

The taxation treatment of negative gearing is also back on the national agenda.

Currently, housing investors are able to claim tax deductions on their investment property that exceed rental income against their salary and other income.

However first home buyers do not get a tax deduction on their interest payments and, consequently, are being priced out of the market.

At this stage there is no certainty that changes will be made to negative gearing, although there is always a risk.

Last month the RBA raised the possibility of changing regulations to curb risky lending to property investors.

APRA, the finance sector's regulator, is also keeping a close eye on lending standards, and is consulting with the RBA and others about additional steps that could be taken to reinforce sound lending practices.

By the end of the year home buyers could face new restrictions on housing loans as regulators try to restrain market activity. R

EVERYTHING YOU NEED TO KNOW FOR MELBOURNE CUP

Tahnee Lopez

Win first place at Melbourne Cup on 4th November and make the most of this year's races. From advice on style and where to go, here are some sure-fire tips we're willing to put all our money on.

Fashion on the Green Women

Ladies, there's not a fashion (and life) tip more important than to follow etiquette. Remember there is such a thing as 'too short' because the only cheeks that should be seen on race day are the ones perfectly blushing on your face. Make sure to add a few squats, pretend walks, and silent hands-in-the-air cheers in the dressing room to see how modest the piece is. Hint: if you can use a dress and a top interchangeably without having to tuck anything under a skirt or pants, it doesn't matter how great pilates has made your bottom half look, the item should still be placed on the return pile (or at least given to your five-year-old niece). But when it comes to style, embrace the world of mix and match. Try combining leather details with peplum, or pairing different shades of both bold and intricate floral print.

Men

If there's anything our male readers should take away from this article, it's to tailor. It's all about making your clothes fit and flatter, not just squeezing into a smaller size. Nip and tuck the sleeves and sides of the suit. Also, slim down the sleeves to reveal a cuff that measures around a quarter to half an inch. Pants should similarly stop at the top of the toes to help you avoid looking like you're wearing a pug for a shoe. Try a fairly thin lapel to keep a clean finish.

If you decide to do a Jack London spring/summer 2014 and pull off an unstructured blazer, balance it with fitting pants and a slim and pointed, rather than square-toe, dress shoe.

Since we all love to get a little bit crazy during the Melbourne Cup, have fun and add a pocket square to a printed blazer and white button up duo. A foolproof rule is to keep the colours and print dark and simple. So, avoid anything resembling a neon yellow suit with harsh black tropical details.

Playful bowties aren't limited to the hipster youth or more mature eccentrics, either. Many Men's fashion stores have a selection to choose from.

Where to go

Mon Komo Hotel

From hosting Myer's latest collection to a truly mouth-watering three-course lunch and live entertainment from some seriously big names, Mon Komo Hotel will be the place that stops the Peninsula.

If the races don't quite prove to be as fruitful as you hoped, the event is guaranteed to put a smile on your face with popular actress and laugh-out-loud comedian Karen Hamilton. But we're sure the hotel's location on the Redcliffe peninsula is enough to win anyone over.

RETURN OF THE SONGBIRD

Named one of Australia's 100 Entertainers of the Century, Marina Prior is an icon of Australian theatre. She's conquered the stage in productions such as Cats, Mary Poppins, The Witches of Eastwick, and Guys and Dolls, but it was the role of Christine in The Phantom of the Opera that won the hearts of audiences around the country.

In November, Marina will be treading the floorboards at the Redcliffe Cultural Centre, not as part of a theatre production, but as part of the national tour for her latest album, Songbird. The Redcliffe Guide was fortunate enough to catch up with Australia's favourite songbird to find out what we can expect from the tour.

What was the inspiration behind Songbird?

I grew up singing songs from the 70s and 80s; I played the guitar and was a busker when going through University, playing songs by Kate Bush and Fleetwood Mac, and I was inspired by this. What I do on tour is that I sing a lot of that music that taught me how to sing. I have been singing Songbird since I was 15, and I felt it was apt as it is what I do- I sing. It is a beautiful song and it seemed to be the right name.

The Songbird tour sees you visiting a lot of regional areas as well as performing in the larger capital city venues. Quite a few performers say that the different energies of larger and smaller shows impact their performance. Do you have a preference?

I think, once I am out there I treat a big venue the same way I treat a smaller venue. You want to be authentic and real, and connect with your audience. Once you are out there and start, you may be slightly more projecting for a bigger venue.

What's it like to be on tour for an album, instead of touring as part of a theatre production?

I used to, and I still do, theatre which means I do 8 shows a week and it is repetitious, day in and day out. The same character, the same lines. Yet when you are doing a concert tour I am myself - not being a character - so I get to improvise. No two shows are the same; I can have a laugh with the audience. I like the liberation that you experience for being in concert. Not that I don't adore theatre, there is just a freedom involved in concerts that I adore.

Do you have any advice for performers thinking about touring in a solo capacity?

Find out who you are - which is a hard thing when you are young, and be that person on stage. Don't try to be someone else or be someone that you admire. You need to be your authentic self as that is what people are going to respond to. If you are just being you, you are not nervous, you are just being. That comes with age and experience. Stop apologising for who you are and know who you are. I didn't find my real voice until I was much older.

What's next for you, Marina?

I go to December with this tour and then I am doing a play at the Melbourne theatre company and then I am doing another show towards the end of 2015. R

ORIGINAL BANDS SHOWCASE AT THE BELVEDERE HOTEL

The Belvedere Hotel is set to support original bands Paisley Road, Misschiff and Tangerine Sky on Friday 7th November from 8pm with their regular Original Band Night.

Held on the first Friday of each month, original solo and duo bands are given the opportunity to wow the crowd from 8pm til late.

Working alongside GSW Sound Hire Solutions, The Belvedere Hotel opens their venue for several bands, providing a full PA system and light show enabling the bands to perform with a complete set up in front of a live audience.

“I am very passionate about what I do and hope to carry it on,” said Gary Wilson, Owner of GSW Sound Hire Solutions. “I’ve just started my business earlier this year and I want to fully support original bands.”

Those attending can expect to enjoy a combination of old classic acoustic and traditional rock band sounds in a relaxed and friendly venue.

“We recognised the need for a venue in the local area that allowed local acts to not just perform their covers, but their original work as well”, said a spokes person for The Belvedere Hotel.

“Open Mic Night is great for bands as we are able to provide the room and equipment that they need to perform.” said Gary.

The Belvedere Hotel confirmed that the Open Mic Night, held on the 5th and 19th of November, was “a great way for bands who are not quite ready to perform, to showcase their talents in a comfortable and non judgemental environment.”

So for an enjoyable evening whilst supporting local and aspiring bands, Belvedere Hotel is the place to be in November. R

Bands interested in performing at the Original Bands Night or Open Mic Nights are encouraged to contact Gary on 0419 826 735.

INDEPENDENT MUSIC CONFERENCE

You've been making music for as long as you can remember, and there isn't a song you can't master. You've got some regulars at your gigs, and you're pretty confident that you've got some talent. But now what? How do you take that passion and make it work for you?

Noel Ramos is the founder of the Independent Music Conference, visiting Australia for the first time from 6th to 9th November. The conference is a safe space for the up and coming to learn, network, and explore the business side of music.

"We'll be talking about the same kinds of things in Brisbane that we speak about here in the States: how to create an independent entrepreneurship, how to market yourself directly to your fans, how to mobilise a street team, (and) how to utilise social networking," said Noel.

The conference is designed to help musicians focus on their art form as a business rather than a purely creative act. Though tickets at the American conferences can cost up to $299, the inaugural Australian conference is free to attend, with registration available on their website.

The Conference will be launched in collaboration with Redcliffe's Rock Central, a regular showcase for emerging talent in the Moreton Bay region. According to Rock Central founder Dan Nebe, the launch party is set to be one of their biggest events yet. Kicking off at 6pm on Thursday, 6th November at the Bramble Bay Bowls Club's front bar, the free event will feature a range of talented musicians including the Counterfeit Umbrellas and Steve Skinner. After the initial launch, the party will continue in the main auditorium with a special appearance by Busby Marou (Pictured)

From 7th to 9th November, the Conference itself will be held at the SAE Institute in West End, with workshops, panel presentations, and seminars, as well as networking opportunities.

Attendees can register at <http://www.indiemusic.com/imc2014/pages/overview.html> R

THE PIONEERS OF DISCO

Suzi O'Shea

As a little girl, I remember listening to my dad's vinyl records. One of my favourite records was the Saturday Night Fever soundtrack. I used to play that record assiduously, singing into a hairbrush and dancing around the lounge room. That was when my love affair with The Bee Gees began.

Moving to Redcliffe three years ago, I was delighted to learn that this was where their career began. I had often wondered why there wasn't a memorial of some kind dedicated to their achievements. Sure enough, in 2013, it was announced that The Bee Gees would receive an honorary lane in Redcliffe to commemorate their achievements.

There was a great deal of excitement when the construction began just off Redcliffe Parade. Signs had hinted at what was to come. What we did know was that it was to be called Bee Gees Way.

Forming in 1955, The Bee Gees are easily Redcliffe's most successful export. Selling over 200 million records worldwide over four decades, they join an esteemed list of top selling artists of all time, including the likes of The Beatles, Michael Jackson and Elvis Presley.

In 1958, Bill Goode, then owner of Redcliffe Speedway, was approached to have three young boys sing at the interval for a coin drop. Bill agreed and history was made, as this was the first live performance for The Bee Gees. When he heard the harmonies the boys produced, Bill went to visit the three brothers at their home.

Coming from humble beginnings, Barry and twin brothers Maurice and Robin, happily accepted help from Bill Goode and his good friend, radio presenter Bill Gates, to promote their band.

It was Goode who came up with the band name given that the three of them (Bill, Barry and Bill) all shared the initials BG. So the band name was coined, The Bee Gees. After a few local gigs, the band signed with Festival Records releasing two albums.

In 1967, after they had relocated to England, "Spicks and Specks" became a number 1 single and success quickly followed.

Moving to Miami in 1975, the band was approached by the producer of Saturday Night Fever for a few songs to go on the soundtrack, and that was the turning point of their career. Six songs were chosen for the soundtrack including You Should Be Dancing, Jive Talking, More Than a Woman, Stayin Alive, Night Fever & How Deep is Your Love?

All six singles went to number 1 on the Billboard charts. In fact, The Bee Gees rank a very impressive third for most hot 100 number 1 singles of all time (after The Beatles and The Supremes).

It's little wonder that Moreton Bay Regional Council went to great lengths to immortalise this exceptionally successful band.

Back to Bee Gees Way. The lane is 50 metres long between Redcliffe Parade and Sutton Street in Redcliffe. There are 13 album covers, over 60 pictures and a statue standing at 1.7 metres tall of the young brothers. This wonderful tribute to the band

If you haven't already, head down to Bee Gees Way and take a closer look at the fantastic legacy these very talented brothers have left behind. In the short time that I have called Redcliffe home, it fills me with such great pride to know that such an iconic band have come from such humble beginnings, right here on our peninsula. Their story is a wonderful inspiration to all the local budding musicians. Who knows, one day there could be a lane dedicated to you. R

TACKLING MORETON BAY!

Mark Templeton

We have a number of people who come in store showing us reels that have seized up or are very grindy when you wind. Unfortunately by this time there is very little we can do to help fix the problem without spending a lot of money.

It does not matter if you have a new or used reel, if you start doing some basic maintenance now and then you may increase the life of the reel. There are a lot of differing views on how to maintain your rods and reels. I am not saying that one is better than another, but we have found that our "basic" home service is effective.

All you need is an old towel, a good quality reel oil, a can of Inox, a clean rag and a Zip Lock Bag. There is no need for a screwdriver or any other tools. We DO NOT use CRC or WD40 on any of our gear as it breaks down essential oils and grease.

Lay your towel out on the work bench or table, remove the Drag Knob and spool and place on the towel. Remove the Handle Cap and Handle and place it down. Grab your oil and place a drop on both handle bearings in the main reel body. Grab you Handle and place a drop on the pivot point but ensure you DO NOT get oil on the rubber handle as this may get tacky.

Place your handle back into the main body and tighten up (don't over tighten). Turn the handle until the main shaft is raised to the top and then place a couple of drops where the shaft joins the main body. Wind the handle a few times to work the oil in. Now place a drop of oil on the Line Roller Bearing (where your line comes from the rod onto the spool). This bearing is designed to move freely at all times.

When you have done this, grab the reel by the rubber handle and give the reel a healthy spray with Inox, don't drown it - just make sure the entire outside of the reel has a coating.

Allow your reel to rest for about 5 minutes then wipe off any excess Inox with your clean rag. Once done, place your spool on and semi tighten your drag knob. With the clean rag, apply with Inox and give all your rod guides a quick wipe both on top and underneath.

Inox will help prevent salt from sticking to your reel and guides which will increase the life of both.

When you get home after a trip where your reel has had salt spray on it, wipe it down with a "damp" cloth, allow to dry and re-spray with Inox.

Enjoy your time with the family and "Maintain the Passion"

WHAT HAPPENED TO THE PROPERTY MARKET?

Nick Griffiths

It only seems like yesterday that all the talk was “how can we recreate interest in the local real estate market?” How depressing is it for everyone when the property market shows no growth or sustained strength. Well it has changed and in a big way!

Spring is the best selling season for residential real estate and with one major real estate group recording a record first month of spring in 2014 - with a result of $3.1 billion in sales, it's not surprising that confidence is growing.

Over the last 12 months, the Redcliffe Peninsula has seen enormous growth and confidence returning to our local market with over 1,325 sales reported and a 'median' house price hitting $400k, a figure we have not seen for several years.

Currently the Redcliffe Peninsula is seeing the lowest stock (Housing For Sale) levels in a very long time, this coupled with increased buyer activity, mostly from local and interstate investors is increasing the demand and in turn, property values.

If you are like me and take a casual drive around our beautiful Redcliffe Peninsula every now and then, you would see the major developments about to pop out of the ground, new businesses opening and not to mention the major infrastructure happening at the moment. It shows the confidence in the local area is very high. And why shouldn't it be? We live in such a beautiful city.

So what does this mean? Well, confidence starts to influence demand and the real estate demand on the Redcliffe Peninsula has started to reach levels we have not seen for a while and talk is that it will continue to grow heading into the New Year.

So, if you are thinking of putting your property on the market, now definitely is a great time to do so.

Rental Review

RP Data's Tim Lawless noted that while detached house rents remained unchanged across the combined capital cities over the quarter, this cannot be said for each individual city. Brisbane is the only city where rents remained unchanged. Melbourne (2.6 per cent), Darwin and Hobart (both 1.5 per cent), Adelaide (1.4 per cent) and Sydney (1.0 per cent) all recorded a rise in rents, while Perth (-2.7 per cent) and Canberra (-2.0 per cent) recorded a fall in rents. R

WHERE CREATIVITY GROWS

“Art comes in all shapes and sizes”

Yacine Khouzami

Talented visual artist and art teacher Gabrielle Turnbull and partner Richard Lancaster will celebrate the first anniversary of the opening of the Art So Lively Centre in November. In celebration, Gabrielle will be opening her studio to the public for an exhibition showcasing a diverse range of genres and mediums that her art students have created. There will be mandalas, human figure, portraits, landscapes and still-life using a variety of media and techniques. These include watercolour, pastel, ink, pencil, acrylic and mixed media including collage.

Gabrielle’s mission is to “guide students to attain excellence in the arts” and her secret to success is keeping the average class size to 6 students. Her art classes started off with 3 students which has turned into 80, who attend 13 classes in a week. “We have mature students in their 80’s and 90’s” said Turnbull, “there are doctors, engineers, lawyers, accountants and teachers.” The exhibition will also feature works from young talented students, the youngest being 5, of which four were finalists in the prestigious 2014 Tyson Evans Youth Art Awards. "They are all drawn together because of their love to create beautiful things" she said.

Gabrielle has built up an impressive portfolio over her 35 years in the industry, having been featured as a finalist in some of Australia's premier art awards. Prestigious nominations include the Hans Heyson Landscape Prize, The Adelaide Perry Drawing Award and the JADA award. Her partner Richard has also had a successful career in the media industries, and is now a columnist for the Redcliffe and Bayside Herald. Gabrielle sees herself as a contemporary artist focusing on abstract and realism styles. "I want my works to explore and express my life and what is happening in the world today," she expressed. "As a teacher, I believe emerging artists and students need encouragement, good tuition, confidence built as well as a variety of subjects and media to experiment with," she commented.

You are never too young or old to let your creativity grow. If you have ever had a passion for art, contact the Art So Lively Centre at <http://www.artgabrielle.com.au/>.

All are welcome to the exhibition which will take place on Monday, 24th November at 6:00pm. It will be hosted at Galleria Gabrielle which is located in the Jetty Arcade on the Redcliffe Esplanade. Entry is free.

HERITAGE-LISTED BUILDING WELCOMES NEW TENANTS

Jackie Smith

Redcliffe will see a culmination of its history when the Redcliffe Arts Society moves into its new premises on Oxley Avenue in November.

Home to the Redcliffe Fire Brigade from 1949 to 2008, the Old Fire Station at 395 Oxley Avenue is considered to be significant in the establishment of Redcliffe as a residential town. Following the opening of the Hornibrook Bridge in 1935, Redcliffe was no longer cut off from the Greater Brisbane Area and tourists flocked to its shores. At the commencement of the Second World War, Redcliffe enjoyed a permanent population of approximately 2,500 residents.

As a seaside tourist destination rather than a residential town, Redcliffe was slow to receive the common utilities that other areas of Brisbane enjoyed, such as a constant supply of water, and with the war in full swing, development was next to impossible. Nonetheless, the town continued to grow and had its own water supply connected in December 1941.

The installation of such an accessible, continuous vital resource in December of the previous year allowed Redcliffe to form its own official fire brigade in 1942. Housed in inadequate premises from the outset, it wasn't long before they were looking for new premises. The breakthrough came when, in 1947, they received a £8,800 debenture loan from the Australian Loan Council, and planning began.

Built upon 1.22 acres of land from brick, rather than the usual timber on which most fire stations of the time relied, the fire station was the first of its kind for Redcliffe, and signified the rapid progression the town was making towards becoming a fully functioning city.

With a fire station built in brick, it wasn't long before other builders used this material in their structures and development increased tenfold. In 1959, the same year that The Moreton Bay Hotel was re-built in brick, the Redcliffe Sewerage Treatment Plant opened and the town was officially declared a city. Since the building of the fire station ten years earlier, the population had increased from 4,500 people to 18,000 people.

The Redcliffe Fire Station was used for its original purpose for close to 60 years before it closed in 2008, with the amalgamation of Kippa-Ring and Burpengary fire stations. After a brief sojourn as an ambulance station in 2009, the building was abandoned, as it was no longer able to house the necessary equipment and services.

There has been much deliberation over what would come of the building, with residents reluctant to see the building go into disrepair, given its historical significance. Now under the control of Moreton Bay Regional Council, the building is receiving a new lease on life as a community arts and volunteers hub. The Redcliffe Arts Society, which was established 53 years ago, will be one of the building's newest residents, when it relocates there in November. R
