BALANCING BUSINESS & BABIES

ot content with running her own successful businesses while raising her three young daughters, business coach Lyla Tuwhangai is now helping others achieve their own success.

After spending twenty years in the hair industry, buying and selling her own salons, Lyla has now transitioned into supporting other women to grow their businesses.

As a result of her selflessness and business prowess, she has been named a dual finalist in the 2020 AusMumpreneur Awards, which celebrate and recognise Australian mums achieving outstanding business success. The winners will be announced at an online event in September.

Lyla is a finalist in both the 'Hair and Beauty' and 'Product Innovation' categories and will be interviewed by a panel of independent judges.

She enjoys the benefits that come from balancing business and motherhood. "I love setting powerful examples to my children," Lyla said.

"Business is challenging; however, motherhood is a whole new ball game.

"My biggest advice is to not lose focus on the real importance in life - family first, then small steps thereafter to building your enterprise.

"Business takes time, it can also lead you in all types of directions.

"Don't be afraid to look at what is waiting behind those doors - take your time, be confident in what you offer and seek advice and support from others in similar positions as you."

In addition to her business support role, Lyla has also recently released a hair care range to support women going through hormonal hair loss. The range, Mamako, is now stocked in multiple hair salons.

This year, Lyla is hoping to be approved for a government grant which will enable her to put together a program for women less fortunate to be able to complete the education fundamentals in hair and beauty and become employable.

"I am here, I am present, I love showing up and setting examples and making change," Lyla said.

Check out Lyla's range at www.mamako.co or contact Lyla through her website www.lylatuwhangai.com. You can read more about the awards at https://ausmumpreneur.com From left: Jacob 'Jabco' Cockrill, Cliff Jackson, Jake 'Lightning' Cullen and Onyx Pine are the Ankle Smokers.

BATTLE OF THE BANDS IN WOODY POINT

ramble Bay Bowls Club (BBBC) are excited to announce that it will once more have live music on its Our House stage. To welcome musicians back to the venue, they are putting them up to battle in the Bands by the Bay Challenge.

BBBC entertainment coordinator Myles Banner said the club had been missing the bands each week during COVID-19 restrictions, and wanted to create an event that could get the musicians back out there in the public eye and bring live music back to the club.

"It's good for us to get people back out again and able to listen to live music," Myles said. "We are one of the only live music venues on the Peninsula, and the bands haven't had much work either. I'm glad we can get people back in again as we are struggling. We are not-for-profit, so this is hopefully a win-win for everyone."

This family-friendly event will take place over nine weeks and will involve 24 bands competing in 45-minute gigs over six Saturdays, before the semi-final rounds and final will reveal the champions. "There's over $6,000 in cash and prizes," Myles said. "First place is $2,500 plus a paid one-hour support gig worth $1,000 at the club on New Year's Eve."

One of the bands that has signed up for the competition is the Ankle Smokers. Performing in the first round of heats on 5 September, the band is looking forward to wowing the crowds with their 70s- and 80s-inspired playlist consisting of psychedelic rock-influenced tunes. Lead singer Onyx Pine said the Bands by the Bay Challenge was a fantastic opportunity to bring his band's sound to Redcliffe and expand its fan base.

"We are keen to have some fun and see where this takes us," Onyx said. "This would be a big stepping-stone for us if we win, and hopefully can spread the word about who the Ankle Smokers are. It would be amazing to bring the house down and welcome in the New Year at Bramble Bay Bowls Club."

POINTING THE WAY TO GOOD FOOD AT CENTREPOINT

ot only does Redcliffe occupy one of the South-East's most enviable locations, it also offers some of the best dining options this side of Brisbane.

That burgeoning food scene is just about to get a whole lot bigger, with the planned addition of Centrepoint, set to be a new and exciting food centre in Margate.

Located on the corner of Oxley Avenue and Wighton Street, Centrepoint will add to the area's recent developments, including a new petrol station and business expansion in Wighton, Baynes, and Beaconsfield Streets.

Centrepoint developer Phil Moschella from The Moschella Group said he was confident Centrepoint would be "the number one spot to be seen for food and fun".

Centrepoint will offer courtyard dining and a varied and multicultural array of food options, including Asian food vendors, a deli, a café, an ice cream shop, and many more.

Phil said he believed the centre would become a "little town centre of activity".

Plans also include monthly street markets, which are expected to be filled with multiple food stalls and vendors, aiming to create a welcoming and relaxed atmosphere, in true Peninsula style.

In the process of setting up Centrepoint as a hotspot, Phil has taken steps to address some of the current issues he believes will affect visitors to the Margate area. He is in discussions with the council to light up the often dark areas around Oxley Avenue in Margate with better lighting for the public.

For further information, including food vendor enquiries, email info@moschellagroup.com or visit the Centrepoint Margate Facebook page.

President of Moreton Bay Symphony Orchestra Eve Brown said the musical event would include an afternoon of stunning concertos and symphonic works such as Sibelius, Dvorak and Hummel. The inspiration doesn't stop there, though.

Moreton Bay Symphony Orchestra is made up of three main ensembles: MBSO; the Youth Symphony; and Junior Strings. The concert will include performances from each ensemble, and soloists Frances Brodie (oboe) and Rebekah Hall (violin).

Eve said a highlight of the event would be the two youth symphony pieces, Dance of the Tumblers and Danse Macabre.

o you want to turn your hard work and experience into a highly profitable business? Local business owner and author Brad Flynn has written just the book for you.

Seeing many business owners working hard but not getting great financial results prompted Brad to study what drives cash flow. The COVID-19 restrictions gave him the space to write Find Your Cash, which aims to help business owners earn more money sooner.

"I worked out there are a handful of strategies that work quickly for all businesses,' Brad said.

Brad started his career as an engineer before falling in love with business and the positive effect it can have on people and their communities. He has worked on the Peninsula mentoring businesses for the last ten years.

"I help business owners learn about recruiting, advertising, financials, systems and, of course, finding cash. I am also president of the Redcliffe Peninsula Chamber of Commerce, which is all about connecting, educating and advocating for small business owners," Brad said.

The book is written in plain English in a streetsmart style, so the information is easily accessible. It includes real case studies and space for readers to record their own details as they work through the book.

"I have seen time and time again over the years that when the owners I work with get and apply these basics, it gives them not only an increase in cash but, equally importantly, an increase in their confidence. This confidence allows them to pursue and grow that entrepreneurial spirit that led them to go into their own business," Brad said.

Brad was busy during lockdown as he also wrote another book, Secrets to Hiring Your Ideal Employees. He believes this is the second largest frustration for business owners. This book will be released sometime in the future.

"But for now, I want to focus on helping as many people as I can improve their cash position through the book, but also through workshops and mentoring," he said.

No Humble Opinions

Story Nick Allford

re they talking about me? is the question you may be asking yourself when listening to local podcaster Ryan Elson's No Humble Opinions.

Why? Because he and many of his guests are local and aren't afraid to share their experiences of living in the Moreton Bay area. There's never any dead air between him and his offsider Maddie, who have plenty of stories to share including being a cop, a politician and either frequenting or working in pubs and restaurants that I'm sure most of us have been to at one time or another.

Adding another layer to No Humble Opinions are its guests. All well experienced in their field of expertise, they are willing to unpack each subject and answering Ryan's often confronting questions, such as talking transformation with a transgender man, spirits with a psychic and politics with our own local MP Luke Howarth.

Pick a controversial subject and he's either covered it, or I'm sure it's on his list. Don't let the swearing put you off; he's not just a ranting shock jock, he comes from a point of seeking genuine understanding. They have strong opinions and I imagine you won't agree with them all – but that's half the fun.

Who knows, they may even be talking about you?

Find 'No Humble Opinions' through Moreton Bay's aOne Radio and wherever you stream your podcasts.

RESTORE LOCAL REEFS

Story Lyndal Magee Photo Pete Johnson

S ince Margate local Ocean Wilkins was born just nine years ago, the world's coral population has reduced by more than 72 per cent.

Now, Ocean wants your help to build a new coral reef right on the Peninsula. With a permit to create and install a Biorock® coral reef at Scott's Point, his September planning event aims to get locals involved in the project.

"It's going to be a really fun day," Ocean said. "We'll be providing education as well as several work stations where people can get involved in actually creating some cool things."

The reef will use Biorock technology: a steel frame through which a solar powered electric current is delivered to help coral grow quickly.

"[The frame] can be welded and bent into a variety of shapes and sizes," Ocean said. "I'm really hoping the community will help me design it." Attendees will also have the opportunity to design and create a turtle nest safety barrier to protect sea turtle hatchlings vulnerable to beach erosion, and become involved longerterm to help Ocean collect data necessary for the project's success.

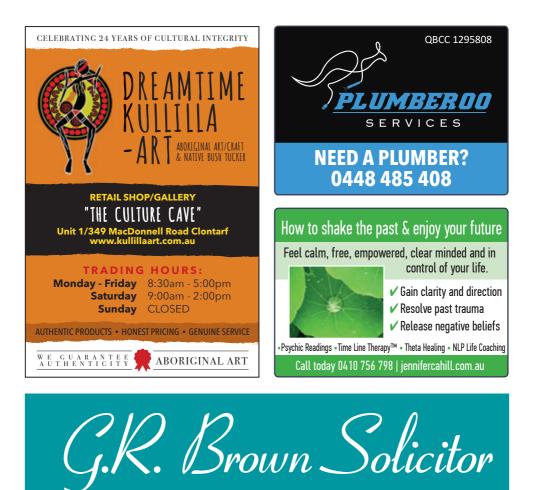

Ecological restoration specialist and guest speaker Dean Philpot said the project had widereaching potential. "When I first saw it, I thought it was exactly the kind of project that should be started on a mass scale, but obviously starting with a few trials like this one," he said. "It's just the right thing to be doing."

Mr Philpot hopes the day will serve as an opportunity for people to reconnect with the bay. "When people come to this event and they realise that such small actions can potentially result in some really incredible outcomes, they'll feel proud of what they've been a part of," he said.

When asked if the event is open to children and adults, Ocean puts it best. "Anyone is welcome," he said. "As long as they've got morals to protect corals."

Book tickets by searching for Biorock and Reef Garden Planning Day on Facebook.

A WORD FROM OUR REPRESENTATIVES

Cr Karl Winchester

It's been a big month for the Moreton Bay Regional Council with some great new initiatives. Recently, the council adopted a land buy-back policy for the region, which will secure vital wildlife corridors, proactively identifying and consolidating natural areas and ecosystems.

A list of potential acquisitions is being developed based on defined prioritisation criteria. This list will guide a proactive approach to voluntary acquisition and will safeguard these locations for our environment for the future.

We're also seeing the rollout of new community safety measures with the addition of 18 brand new portable CCTV units being placed across the Moreton Bay Region. This includes multiple units at locations on the Redcliffe Peninsula. The units will rotate through a set of areas identified in partnership with Queensland Police, targeting hooning, vandalism and anti-social behaviour. These units are backed up by the hundreds of fixed CCTV cameras across our network, which police say give law enforcement more tools to prevent and respond to crime, as well as prosecute offenders.

It is good to see new innovative programs being put forward in our ever-growing region.

Yvette D'Ath MP

As the local State Member I understand the importance of education to provide a strong foundation for our Peninsula youth. That is why the State Government is investing over $1.63 million across state schools in our Redcliffe community for a string of important upgrades and projects to enhance learning environments.

These projects include refurbishments to the Clontarf Beach State High School gymnasium and sport courts, upgrades to the outdoor learning area and classrooms at Kippa-Ring State School, and a swag of maintenance works across a number of schools. These projects will also support local jobs.

This is in addition to the State Government's Cooler Cleaner Schools program, which will see all of our state school classrooms, libraries and staff rooms across the Peninsula air-conditioned by mid-2022, with a number of our schools already at installation stage.

We know that 2020 has been a difficult year for us all. On behalf of our entire community, thank you to our teachers, teacher aides, school staff, parents and students for your ongoing dedication in ensuring our kids get the best education.

Luke Howarth MP

We are finally starting to see the green shoots of economic recovery! The results of the Morrison Government stimulus spending were never going to be instant; the seeds needed to take root in the economy.

Excitingly, the latest data from the Housing Institute of Australia (HIA) confirms the HomeBuilder programme is achieving its objective of protecting tradies' jobs.

In the two months since June, Australia's major builders have reported that new home sales have increased by 64 per cent over the April-May period, with 42.4 per cent in Queensland. Additionally, the Financial Review reported soaring land sales in July. This is positive news for our third-largest industry - construction. With nearly 10 per cent of all workers employed in construction, we know it forms the backbone of our local economies.

HIA's chief economist Tim Reardon said HomeBuilder had arrested the decline in new home sales and would protect jobs in the sector into 2021. The Master Builders Association is also reporting that in the past four weeks, activity in the housing sector has returned to pre-COVID-19 levels. This development shows this is the most effective stimulus in decades and will help lead us along the path to recovery.

If you are looking to build a new home or substantially renovate, contact my office on 3284 8008 for more details. The scheme will continue until December 31 2020.

Redcliffe Musical Theatre (RMT) presents Lord of the Flies this month, based on William Golding's classic novel that gruesomely showcases the moral dilemmas of a group of stranded teenage boys in World War II.

Directed by Zachary Crisan – his debut – the RMT production explores the famous novel's themes as the boys' plight for survival turns wild and violent.

"I've put a nice, dark twist to the show, and play around with some religious themes," Zachary said. "There's a lot of hidden messages in the show that revolve around religion." The show has a cast of only 10 boys, who started rehearsing in July. Zachary said they were very excited now the costumes and props were coming together, and that they were ready to get on the stage to shine and wow the audience.

"It is a book and play that so many have studied over the years and it's been great bringing it to life," Zachary said. "Expect to feel uncomfortable. You will feel like you are a part of the show and with the boys on the island."

RMT president Madeleine Johns said she was looking forward to welcoming patrons to the "outthere performance" and did not want anyone to miss out. She said the theatre company was complying with Theatre Queensland's COVID safe plan, which only allowed 50 people in the audience at a time.

"Unfortunately, we cannot have any walk-ins to the show," Madeleine said. "Everyone must prebook online, so they are guaranteed a seat."

he talented duo will be showing their artwork at a new exhibition, which came out of this year's period of enforced isolation.

"For creative people, I think we're kind of used to isolation; we like the solitude and the quiet time," Sila said.

"But it was a great time to be productive and do what we love."

At just 11 years old, Hunter is a budding artist and enjoys drawing. He said he was looking forward to his first professional art show. "I like to do art, it's so simple," Hunter said.

"I am excited to show people my artwork and make sales, and I am so excited for my first proper exhibition."

Sila added Hunter had been through a rough time at school, but found solace in his artwork.

"He's a good kid with a big heart who's been through a lot of challenges, but he still manages to stay strong and true to himself," she said. "Hunter hopes to inspire and encourage other kids who have been through hard times to never give up and to follow their dreams.

"He inspires me in many ways, to be better and to do better."

The art show, curated by Renata Jayne, will feature work from a range of artists, in a wide variety of mediums, and there will be food and entertainment on offer as well.

Money raised from ticket sales will go to Farm Animal Sanctuary, a charity which provides a safe haven for animals. All the artworks will also be for sale, with prices starting from just $4.

etty 2 Jetty, the longest-running fun run in South-East Queensland, will this year mark its 34th year. Despite a change in date because of COVID-19 restrictions, the event is still expected to draw a crowd.

CEO of Moreton Bay Region Industry and Tourism Shane Newcombe said the event had a rich history on the Redcliffe Peninsula with a great race-day atmosphere.

"The course is just breathtaking," he said. "It's not called Queensland's most scenic fun run for no reason. When you're running along the foreshore as the sun rises, it is truly magical."

The event will once again include 3km, 5km, 10km and half-marathon race events. While there have been several changes to the way the event is being run, Shane said all four race courses would remain the same as last year.

"There will be some changes to fruit and water stations along the course due to COVID-19 restrictions, but the beautiful scenic course everyone knows and loves will be staying the same," he said.

Shane said detailed COVID-Safe measures will be available on the website once the plan is approved. However, if the region was to go back into tighter COVID-19 restrictions, the event will be cancelled, and registrants will receive a refund.

"There will be more toilets, more handwashing stations, a changed layout, line management measures, extra cleaners, contact tracing measures, and staggered race starts," he said.

The popular Healthy Living Expo will still go ahead too, although visitors can expect a scaledback format this year to avoid over-crowding. The full list of vendors is still being finalised.

For anyone considering whether they should take part, Shane said the event catered for all walks of life.

"If you have a passion for running, want to walk for a cause, or feel like going for a pleasant stroll, sign up for Jetty 2 Jetty. What's more, you'll get to experience the beauty of the Redcliffe Peninsula as you complete the course," he said.

A SUPPORTIVE FOOD SERVICE FOR THOSE IN NEED

Story Nadia Chapman

The Gold Coin Op Shop in Redcliffe has recently extended and created what is known as The Pantry for locals who are struggling.

The Pantry is for concession and pension holders who live in the Moreton Bay Region, and is a supportive service that offers free and cheap essential pantry items.

Owner of the Gold Coin Op Shop Tracey Brown said The Pantry first started after hearing how many people were struggling with food and bills.

"The Pantry is intended to provide people with a small amount of food to supplement their normal shopping," Tracey said.

At the moment, shoppers can expect to spend $2 for 10 items and are able to fill a bucket of fruit and veg for the same price, with all bread being free.

"Ninety per cent of our shelf products are purchased through the sales from the Op Shop — however, we have allocated a section in the shop for public donations."

All items are chosen to make wholesome and nutritious meals or snacks to help those struggling, such as tinned goods and pastas.

The Pantry is expected to be open permanently from Tuesday-Saturday from 9am-12pm.

You can find out more by searching for 'Gold Coin OP Shop' on Facebook.

Golden Rules of Recruitment

he worst time to have to find a new employee is when you have no choice because you have just lost a key team member.

At which time, maybe you can relate to this, you will take on somebody even though you have a funny feeling that it may not be the best decision.

That is where the golden rules of recruitment can save you a bunch of heartache and money.

Rule 1 - Always be recruiting

This does not necessarily mean running adverts all the time. It can be as subtle as occasional social media posts around "we are always looking for great people", vehicle signage, newsletters and also a recruiting page on your website.

Now recruiting doesn't mean you have to hire someone. As long as you are honest and up front at the time and let them know that you are looking to build a list of quality candidates for when you do need to hire.

Rule 2 - Hire slow and let go fast

The beauty of rule 1 is that it can take the stress out of having to hire in a hurry, that way you can be a bit choosier about who you ultimately take on.

When you do bring someone on and if, unfortunately, things are not working out for either party, it can be best for all to let them go quickly. But if you have been following rule 1, the likelihood of this occurring is greatly reduced.

If you need help in any area of your business, just reach out to your local chamber of commerce. We are offering free membership until the end of 2020 (save $150). visit www.redcliffepeninsulachamber.org.au.

Story Nick Allford @WatchItWombat

magine David Lynch making a Bond movie – then you'd have Tenet. To explain the plot of this film any other way would take more than my 300 word allocation (even if I did understand it all). That being said, this is a great film with director Christopher Nolan's signature all over it; a genre-twisting story, an incredible score, next-level practical effects and most of all, exposition fired in your face like a machine gun.

From start to finish you'll be caught up in a world that you kind of recognise but may struggle to understand, giving you a feeling of unease as you try to decipher the torrent of dialogue, and that's before we even start talking about the use of 'time inversion' and 'entropy'. There's a lot to process, and just when you think you're grasping something, a whole new plot device or random character is introduced. What this film does expertly is reward those who are willing to pay attention. If you can put in the effort, follow along and learn the rules (and maybe have a degree in physics), you'll be gifted with a mind-altering experience.

In true Nolan style there's plenty of 'score porn', with Nolan replacing his go to composer Hans Zimmer with the equally outstanding Ludwig Göransson, although coupled with the thumping sound design, this can make the already tricky dialogue hard to hear.

Another of the director's favourites, Michael Caine, does make the cut, but only in a cameo. Relative newcomer John David Washington is great, however he does occasionally look like he is trying to understand the script. I don't blame him. The rest of the cast are good; Robert Pattinson brings a surprising endearing quality, but I found it hard to warm to Elizabeth Debicki.

Despite this being a very complex movie, I thoroughly enjoyed it, walking out of the cinema wanting to pull apart and piece back together so many elements of the story and its execution. I recommend watching it at the cinema. Take your mates so you can spend hours dissecting it afterwards.

MUSIC SPOTLIGHT When Nature Additional Nature Unite

edcliffe musician Vaughan Jones is a man of many talents. When he is not on tour with Troy Cassar-Daley, he can be found on a stand up paddleboard (SUP) off Suttons Beach, playing with the dolphins and taking photographs of his time in the water around the Peninsula.

Growing up with a father who toured Australia with bands before moving to Austin, Texas, for most of his youth, it is no surprise that pianist Vaughan walked away from a scholarship in Marine Biology to join a band and start touring the US straight after high school. He began his music career playing guitar for country bands before becoming selftaught on the keys, and hasn't looked back since.

I played by ear and figured things out on my own," he said. "I related what I already knew from guitar to the keyboard and it all came really quick and naturally."

The keyboard player was introduced to Troy Cassar-Daley in the early 90s after settling into Redcliffe, and had a "veranda jam" at Troy's farm, before he was invited to join the band.

"I have been in his band about 16 years now and I have also toured with Adam Harvey, Guy Sebastian and Jessica Mauboy. I also do recording sessions for people's albums – mostly in the country industry."

In his free time, Vaughan dabbles in photography and has a passion for SUP. His online following has grown to thousands around the world, with fans admiring his unique images from the water. This has led to an ambassadorship with Ride the Tide, a paddle board company whose boards feature in some of Vaughan's pictures.

"I spend a lot of time on the water paddle boarding – especially the last few months," he said. "I average about 100km a week paddling from Suttons Beach to Scarborough each day.

"I have got some dolphin mates now off Suttons Beach and I have been doing some work with Dolphin Research Australia to document the dolphins I find," he said. "They're allowing me to name one of the dolphins I have found in the bay – it hasn't been catalogued here before. I'm going to call him Chuck."

ou can't keep a good cactus down. Despite some challenges for the previous owners during the coronavirus lockdown, one of Redcliffe's favourite eateries and watering holes, Cactus Jack's, is under new management and has welcomed back fans of its TexMex and grill offerings.

New owner Rob Griffiths – a hospitality mainstay with nearly two decades of experience – said he was excited to take the restaurant into a new phase in the community.

"The original owners had made the hard decision not to reopen due to COVID," he said.

"We were then given an opportunity to take on the lease. We love the restaurant and were stoked to be given the opportunity to take it on.

"The feedback we have gotten has been really positive. We have been fortunate enough to bring back the core team, as well as adding some new recruits so we could reopen with staff who really know what they are doing.

"We wanted to reopen and give our customers their Cactus favourites that they were missing out on during the lockdown."

Rob said the loyal fans had flocked back, eager to get their hands on the eatery's greatest hits and take in the relaxed waterfront atmosphere.

"We have so much to offer; get stuck into a bucket of buffalo wings and a few cold beers, enjoy sangria in the sun, margaritas, sizzling fajita plates, flame-grilled steaks," he said. "There's always something going on. I think you would be hard pressed to find someone who could be disappointed with the view.

"It doesn't matter if you are the type to throw on a sombrero and make a night of it, or the type who prefers a quiet spot looking out to sea.

For me, it is a place where people can come and enjoy great food and drink, be entertained, or have a laugh with friends and family. More or less just have a hell of a good time.

Rob said the local support over the years for the restaurant had been fantastic.

"We have had great encouragement and support for a number of years and without this, I don't think we would have been as fortunate as we have been," he said.

"We love the community spirit that we have in Redcliffe, and are determined to return that sentiment back into the area wherever and whenever we can."

How a Woody Point Homeowner saved the precious memory of an icon.

dorning the length and breadth of a Woody Point homeowner's massive perimeter stone wall is a magnificent colourful seascape depicting an ocean filled with coral and sea creatures. Dolphins and turtles playfully swim in one half of the scenic mural. The other half of the seascape shows an old-fashioned warship sailing at speed, and in the foreground, firmly embedded in the sand, stands a rusting shipwreck. A pelican watches a small boy playing in the foreground, spelling out the name of the ship 'Gayundah' in the sand. The mural is close by the Gayundah Arboretum, which is named for the famous ship, where the now almost disintegrated ship's wreck lies. Thus the image of a ship that help save Queensland from an Imperial Russian invasion in the 1880s has been beautifully immortalised on a Woody Point wall.

The history of this iconic ship is filled with drama, pathos and humour. In 1888 its captain, due to a pay dispute with the government at the time, threatened to blow up Parliament by aiming the ship's guns at the building. Eventually he was arrested and the rest is history.

The mural was commissioned by the owner of the home. Artist Dan Krause of Street Art Concepts, together with fellow artist Steve Falco, created the massive work. "It took us several days to complete the work and we are very proud to have been asked to paint such a historically important subject," Dan said.

Paid Parking For New Hospital Carpark

Story Aleasha Bliss

A new $23.7 million multi-storey carpark at the Redcliffe Hospital will open this month.

Member for Redcliffe Yvette D'Ath said the State Government was excited to open the carpark on 21 September, as it would increase the current capacity by 50 per cent.

An extra 400 parking spaces have been added, bringing the total to 1100.

"The new car park will be wholly owned and operated by Metro North HHS and the Redcliffe Hospital, enabling the cost of parking to be the lowest in our region," Ms D'Ath said.

The hospital car park will come at a cost for the first time, with a twoweek grace period before spaces begin to be charged on 6 October. There will be concessions for eligible patients, carers and staff.

"In 2017, I promised that the fees would not exceed $15 per day, and I am happy to announce no one will pay more than $13 per day, with a guarantee that fees will be frozen until at least December 2023," Ms D'Ath said.

The pricing structure for parking at the hospital is $3 for 15-60 minutes; $5 for 1-2 hours; and $9 for 3-4 hours. The maximum cost for up to 24 hours is $13.

Enid Bullock & Maya Kuperman

POWER OF STYLE EXHIBITION

OWER of STYLE exhibition at Redcliffe begins 16 September. RAS is the art home of good friends – Enid Bullock and Maya Kuperman. Their mutual love of drawing began as children.

Enid's childhood in Ipswich exposed her to regular viewings of wildlife in a local park which she would later draw. Her teaching career was complimented by her ability to draw. Her university studies included a fascinating semester studying Russian history.

Meanwhile, in Russia, young Maya was passionate about drawing people. Her period working as a Doctor in Poland lasted several years. When she relocated to Australia during the 1960's, Maya's love of art forged a new and flourishing career as a painter in Sydney and later on the Gold Coast. Some decades later she moved again, to Brisbane's north and joined RAS, meeting Enid.

Both artists adore working with acrylics. Enid's passion for landscapes and her love of wildlife influence her heartfelt style. Maya's contemporary abstract style in painting and sculpture evoke an emotional response from each viewer. Maya also works in other paint mediums [oils, watercolour, and pastels].

New Outlook For Swimming Club

he iconic Redcliffe War Memorial Pool is undergoing a facelift, with upgrade works on the Olympic size pool, the learn-to-swim pool and the baby wading pool due to be completed by early September.

The project includes shell cracking injection repairs and repainting, tile grouting and replacement of broken tiles, repair of joints around the concourse and an engineering inspection.

The upgrade was welcome news for the Redcliffe Leagues Swimming Club, which is based there.

Redcliffe Leagues Swimming Club (RLSC) vicepresident Kylie Sturges said the club hosted meets featuring swimmers from all over South-East Queensland who had stated the club ran a really good meet, but the facilities looked old and tired and needed upgrading.

"I think the upgrades will entice people to have a good look at our club as we are one of the few with an undercover 50-metre pool in the state, so this will be a massive drawcard when it comes to training, meets, and those seeking exercise," she said.

"We've also applied for a few grants hoping to get an electronic scoreboard, and if successful, we will be able to not only host more championship meets, but offer this equipment to the local Redcliffe district schools," Kylie said.

RLSC has a rich history, having been founded under legendary Hall of Fame head coach Ken Wood. Olympic swimmers Jessicah Shipper, Geoff Huegill and Leisel Jones all trained under his guidance. The family-orientated club has been going through a rebuilding stage in recent times, and in 2018 appointed Wanda Drew as head coach. Wanda has a stellar record, having coached on the Australian Paralympic team, Australian Open Water World Champ team and World Short Course team.

RLSC Secretary Sarah Smith said the club had gained a lot of momentum under Wanda and ultimately hoped to get back to the Ken Wood heydays.

We're passionate about what we do and believe swimmers are really well disciplined people," she said

"It's phenomenal the 'life skills' the kids gain from respecting and listening to the coach and being part of a team camaraderie day in, day out."

SING ALONG WITH THE TARTAN TERROR

Get ready for a night of fun as David Gray covers songs from the past six decades at the REDCLIFFE RSL.

Story Jodie Woodward

avid performs in a range of genres including pop, rock, country, rock-androll, ballads and disco. He's also wellknown for his love of wearing tartan while performing.

"Because I am originally from Scotland, I wear a lot of tartan outfits on stage – be it my suits or my kilts," he said. "A patron at a club once called me The Tartan Terror. I thought that was a great nickname and would set me aside from all the other solo acts on the club circuit, and everyone would remember me. So, I stole it from her."

David started out as a drummer from the age of 12. Later, while touring internationally with an ABBA tribute show, he discovered he could also sing. He hasn't stopped since.

"My main influences are acts from the 80s pop and rock era," he said. "Being a singing drummer, I was always drawn to musicians like Don Henley from the Eagles and Peter Criss from KISS. "I thought it was wonderful how they were able to play drums and sing at the same time, so I feel very fortunate to have been given that gift also."

David's career highlights have included travelling the world for four years performing as a drummer and singer, and watching his own UK Bee GeeZ show become one of the favourite tribute acts around Australia. He's also performed on the same bills as acts like The Village People, John Paul Young, Marcia Hines and Leo Sayer.

At the Redcliffe RSL show, David said to expect plenty of songs you know and love and a good dose of audience participation.

I guarantee if you come along and spend the evening with The Tartan Terror, you will have sore feet and sore voices the next day," David said.

very year spring brings birds, bees and flowers to the forefront of our minds; nature's wonderful displays are hard to miss.

Toowoomba has been celebrating this beauty for over 70 years with its Carnival of Flowers, held annually in September to coincide with the arrival of spring's newest colourful blooms. This year, with some adjustments to ensure a COVIDSafe event, the breathtaking beauty of the carnival will go on.

Toowoomba Regional Council Mayor Paul Antonio said, "Toowoomba is primed and ready to showcase its natural beauty. Nothing can stop the power of the flower and we are inviting people from all over to come and play in the petals this spring."

Floral displays will be featured in the Botanic Gardens at Queens Park and Laurel Bank Park, along with the spectacular Night Garden powered by Ergon Energy, which will be open for 10 nights from 18 to 27 September.

"We are the garden city," Mr Antonio said. "Our rich red volcanic soils along the escarpment and our dynamic black soil plains surrounding us are the envy of many green thumbs around the world, so we need to show the world how it's done. This is what makes the carnival so special. It's a celebration everyone can take part in and we look forward to welcoming everyone back again."

Both Queens Park and Laurel Bank Park will feature entertainment every weekend in September, starring local talent, music makers and storytellers, and of course the fabulous ferris wheel will be operating during the carnival, offering a wonderful way to gain a great view of the splendour of Queens Park. The food and wine options are inviting, with tasty food truck market stalls, food and wine tours and the #trEATS campaign, where restaurants, cafés and venues across the city offer $20 special springtime feasts for hungry visitors.

The Carnival of Flowers is also pet-friendly. The 'Petals and Pups' 2020 program boasts more than 20 dog-friendly activities and 27 off-leash parks, as well as dog-friendly cafés, restaurants and accommodation recommendations.

Plan a colourful getaway to celebrate spring.

First Nations Artwork Showcased in New Gallery Reveal

Story Aleasha Bliss

rt lovers rejoice - the new $5.5 million Redcliffe Art Gallery is open for business, and is kicking off its re-launch with a stunning exhibition of First Nations artists.

First is a collection of inspiring art from leading First Nations artists in the Moreton Bay Regional Council art collection.

Moreton Bay Region Mayor Peter Flannery said he was proud the council was opening the new gallery with the work of contemporary Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander artists.

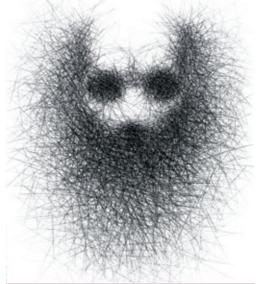

"First, the first exhibition at the new Redcliffe Art Gallery, will share the important and continuing contribution that First Nations artists make to Australian art," he said.

"With a focus on people and place, this exhibition will examine ideas surrounding sovereignty and connections to place through the stories of artists living in or from Queensland and the Torres Strait.

"Some people might not know that Queensland is a hub for contemporary First Nations practice, with many artists living here receiving national and international acclaim."

Mr Flannery said it had been 250 years since the Endeavour sailed the east coast of Australia and this exhibition marked the anniversary with powerful Indigenous artwork expressing cultural continuity and highlighting an important part of Australia's history and identity.

"We want to ensure First Nations culture, heritage, and diversity play a greater role in the social and economic future of Moreton Bay," he said. "We can't wait to show off the new space when the gallery doors open to the public from Saturday 5 September."

The 1000 square metre Redcliffe Art Gallery has a new location and is sporting extra room for upcoming exhibitions. It also features enhanced display areas, space for community groups, has a new customer service area and a courtyard.

"Our vision for the new Redcliffe Art Gallery is to become a cultural destination of Queensland, inspiring locals and visitors to come to the Redcliffe Peninsula and experience world-class art," Mr Flannery said.

ROLLER SKATING IS BACK

A question about local roller skating and rollerblading groups in Clontarf sparked the interest, nostalgia and support of many people on social media recently. The comments buzzed with memories of when Redcliffe had a rollerdrome and how people were discovering or rediscovering their love of roller skating. One commenter even said, "A local roller skating facility would be ideal and popular for all ages. Those skate rinks of old used to draw huge crowds of onlookers as well as skaters."

If you are interested in roller skating or rollerblading there is a Facebook group called Free Sk8 Brisbane Inline and Quads, which often meets up on Sundays for a 12 to 13 km skate starting at Decker Park in Brighton and riding to Woody Point and back. If that is too far for you, you can start on the Clontarf side of the bridge and ride just 7km. For more information about the social skating and blading group, search Free Sk8 Brisbane Inline and Quads on Facebook.

NEIGHBOURHOOD WATCH COMMUNITY MORNING

Neighbourhood Watch in Australia is a local community group that facilitates the creation of safer, connected and inclusive communities. The Woody Point Neighbourhood Watch is having a community morning on 12 September from 9am to 12:30pm.

If you would like to know more about the Neighbourhood Watch organisation, visit www.nhwa.com.au or search Woody Point NHW on Facebook. Advertisement

BEWARE

All around Australia we see "door knockers" deceiving the unwary by attacking the very foundation of our Christian faith. They claim that Jesus Christ is Michael the archangel [created], and that the Holy Spirit is only a force and not a person of the Godhead. This teaching is the height of blasphemy and is a direct attack on God's word.....the Bible. [ 2 Cor. 11:3 -13 ] The true Gospel is that God became flesh so as to shed His soul cleansing blood on the cross and to rise from the dead to represent us in Heaven, [ Rom, 8:34: Heb.7:25 ]. By a sincere prayer you can receive Him in to your life. [Rom. 10:9]

HISTORY

Still Fondly Remembered

Story Leanne Palmer

ustralian history is scattered with stories of people taking on bold new endeavours and leading lives of great service to their communities. Circumstances, tenacity, mettle and generosity of spirit, lead to some extraordinary life stories.

Marle Juster was one such man. Arriving on the Redcliffe Peninsula aged eleven in 1935, he attended Humpybong State School. While still a student he worked in Grants Iceworks and had a paper run to help support his large family. He had a zest for life and adventure, joining the army on his 18th birthday and eventually serving in Dutch New Guinea, The Solomon Islands and New Britain.

Returning from WWII in 1946 he started his first bakery in Margate the following year. Although initially knowing nothing about baking, his business soon became a success.

Over a few decades, he opened five cake shops on the Peninsula and was quickly known not only for his delicious baked goods but also as a man of great character and humour. His trading name was Marle Cake Shops because he said, "I couldn't call them Juster Cake Shop."

Marle loved Redcliffe, and Redcliffe loved Marle. He became involved with the Scouts group, wanting to live his life as an example for others to follow. He mentored youth and gave talks at local schools.

He keenly promoted Redcliffe as a place to visit and live. He was a clever business marketer and was always brewing up new and fun ways to entice the public's custom.

Marle was a foundation member of the Redcliffe Rostrum and Apex Clubs, and active in the Redcliffe Chamber of Commerce. He held various positions in the Pastrycooks Association of Queensland for which his service was acknowledged with a Medal of the Order of Australia.

The Redcliffe Museum recently acquired one of his first pieces of baking equipment - a Planetary Cake Mixer - looking somewhat like a scaled-up old-style Sunbeam Mixmaster. Sturdy and well crafted, it survived years covered in dust before finding this new home.

Sadly passing in January 2017, Marle will long be remembered for his tireless contributions to the community he loved.

LOCAL PROPERTY MARKET REVIEW

Understanding the numbers.

Story Stephan Siegfried

ne of the biggest problems with understanding real estate data is that the numbers are always a little bit dated.

Often by the time the sales data indicates a trend, something quite different could be happening on the ground. Because of this data lag, many market analysts lean towards using auction sales data to deliver figures that are 'today numbers'.

Stephan Siegfried

The problem with auction data in our region is that the auction culture is not large enough to provide a decent enough sample. Not enough homes either go to market or sell under auction conditions to provide a strong market reading. It's very different to certain parts of the country where the auction culture is strong (such as in Sydney and particularly Melbourne).

So how do you get a feel of what is going on now? Is the market going up; is it going down? If you were to listen to the mainstream media, there is a very strong chance you will have the wrong message. I'd suggest you look for indicators such as SOLD signs. How many are around? If there are a lot more sold Signs than for sale signs, this is an indication that the market is on the move. I'm seeing this at the moment.

Personally, I like to also track the number of days between each sale. Over my career, it has averaged around one sale every nine days. If the market is slow it'll stretch to 12 or maybe 13 days between sales, and if it's really strong its around one sale every seven days. In the last 10 weeks I've been averaging around one sale every four days. This means it's currently a hot market. Other things to look for are multiple offers; are agents seeing a lot of them? What about open homes? Are there many people attending and what are you hearing?

For what it's worth, if you are thinking of selling in a 'hotter' market then you have a little bit more leverage in negotiations. If you are buying in a hotter market then its important to be ready. If you need finance, have your pre-approvals in place. Be decisive with your decision-making. If you need to sell before you can buy, consider doing this promptly and get the process underway. If you'd like to know more, feel free to get in touch. Have a wonderful month.

F RESTORATION & REPAIRS

All roofs age over time. After around 15 years, tile roofs deteriorate to the point where a restoration should be considered. At this age, colour starts to fade, ridge capping becomes brittle, lichen and mould can grow, and tiles become harder to clean. The appearance of your home suffers and your roof is more likely to develop leaks.

Richard Gabriel from Mr Highlights Roofing has over 20 years experience in the roofing trade. He uses only premium quality products for his restorations, and offers a full 10 year warranty on all workmanship and materials.

Sandgate Hearing For more complex hearing loss

If you are looking for a hearing clinic who can provide earwax management, tinnitus consultation and specialised hearing aid fittings for the most challenging type of hearing loss - severe to profound hearing loss – Sandgate Hearing may be your solution.

Severe hearing loss patients face unique hearing needs, such as absent hearing in high frequencies, poor hearing in noise and reduced auditory resolution abilities.

For each hearing aid fitting, we take care of every little process - from selecting the hearing aids, designing the earmoulds, choosing the programming formula and testing and adjusting the hearing aids' performance in order to maximise speech understanding.

Sandgate Hearing is an independent hearing clinic, accredited by the government to provide hearing services to pensioners and other eligible clients. We have many clients who are happy with their outcomes, including our advice and price.

NOT ALL HEARING CLINICS ARE THE SAME

Deciding on which hearing clinic to go to, may determine your hearing outcome for the next 5-7 years!

HERE IS WHAT SOME OF OUR HAPPY CUSTOMERS HAVE TO SAY ...

What a difference!

Wow! What a difference! Thank you Ronnie, I don't have to keep saying 'pardon" anymore. Better watch what you say in future, because I can hear everything! Make it easy on yourself, visit Ronnie at Sandgate Hearing. Leonard Swanson - Redcliffe

I am very happy!

I am very happy with Ronnie. He has changed my life completely by the way he has taken care of me and my hearing. Now I can hear my friends and family, and I am able to join in conversations. I've met other people who have been to Ronnie, and they too are very pleased with their results. .
